

Kristin Daniel

Kristin Daniel, an accomplished artist in her own right, became enamored with performing at a very young age. Knowing she wanted to pursue her passion for the arts, she moved to Los Angeles after graduating from The University of Louisiana-Lafayette in Business Administration to work as a professional dancer. Working between Los Angeles and New Orleans, Kristin earned several credits, including: GLEE, Grey's Anatomy, Carrie Underwood's "Cowboy Casanova" music video, and Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter. She worked as Choreographer for ABC's The Astronaut Wives Club and Assistant to choreographers Tyce Diorio and Lindsay Nelko on the hit show "So You Think You Can Dance?". In addition to traveling the country Choreographing, conducting Master Classes, and serving as Director of a competitive studio company in Louisiana, Kristin is now in her third year of owning her own business, Distinction Arts Co., which hosts her annual dance intensive & charity organization fundraiser: Distinction Dance Intensive. Constantly immersing herself into her craft, she is thrilled and excited to continue furthering her career as an artistic force in the industry.